MORNING CHIT-CHAT.

It is not raining rain to me.
It's raining daffodils;
In every dimpled drop I see
Wild flowers on the hills.

The clouds of gray engulf the day,
And overwhelm the town;
It is not raining rain to me,
It's raining roses down.

A health unto the happy,
A fig for him who frets!
It is not raining rain to me,
It's raining violets.

—Robert Loveman.

IT is pretty hard to see the daffodils in the lawn, when that particular day on which you planned to go skylarking turns out rainy, isn't it? And yet the daffodils are pretty sure to be there, and often many more of them than you realize.

This is a word for discouraged and rebellious people. People to whom life seems dreary, some disappointment, some very unwelcome change in life has come.

Dear folks, it is hard for you to believe that in your particular change or disappointment there can be any preparation for future happiness, but truly there may be.

Again and again, even in my small individual experience, I have seen it happen that the sharp unwelcome turn of the road that seemed so cruel and unnecessary has been the very turn that led straight to the land of heart's desire.

And more than once I have seen the shock of sudden misfortune and suffering turn the trend of a life out of some unfortunate rut into which it had gotten.

Once on a time was a woman who went wrong, and because she thought it would be too hard to get back, and because she thought she was having a good time, stayed wrong. Continual merry-making and the possession of beautiful things, and admiration and the semblance of love, hid the horror and emptiness of her life from her, until one day what she considered a terrible misfortune came to her.

She became very ill of typhoid fever. Everyone deserted her. She was friendless and alone and in want. And with all that had hid it from her stripped away, she saw the horror and emptiness of her life—saw it so plainly that she turned away from it forever. And to-day she is a good and happy woman, with a home and children.

If she had known how to pray, she would have surely prayed that the sickness should have been averted, and yet she would have been praying for destruction.

Out of the rain of disillusionment came the daffodils of peace and happiness.

The woman who repeated to me the quotation which follows, probably knew as great a disappointment as any woman could, for, on what was to have been her wedding eve, she found that her lover was unfaithful to her. As she quoted this, she said, "I have found it true."

"There is help in the still places of life, its retreats, its withdrawals for communion with God and one's own soul. Bereavement is one of the still places of life; disappointment is another; pain is another. We come out of deep bereavements, out of great sicknesses, out of bewildering losses and disappointments, out of the seriously arresting experiences of life, if we accept such experiences in the right spirit, with clarified wisdom, with renewed faith, with better adjustment to the divine plan. At first it may seem, when we are called aside into the still places, like a turning back of life upon itself, an undoing of all its hopes and purposes. But by and by we learn that the still place is instead a place where life gathers itself together, finds itself, heads with new power and usefulness in the direction which God indicates.

CYRUS THOMAS DEAD

Noted Ethnologist Thirty
Years in Bureau Service.

DEMISE DUE TO HIS YEARS

Although Eighty-five, He Was Active Until a Few Months Ago, When He Became Confined to His Home on Park Road—Wife and Three Daughters Survive Him.

Prof. Cyrus Thomas, of the Bureau of Ethnology, died early yesterday morning at his home, 1567 Park road. Although eighty-five years old, he retained active relations with the bureau almost up to the time that failing health of the past several months confined him to the house. His condition became serious about four weeks ago. His age was mostly responsible for his death.

Throughout the scientific world Prof. Thomas was recognized as an authority on the early inhabitants of America, making important and extensive contributions to literature. He wrote as well on other branches of entomology.

Thirty Years in Bureau.

For thirty years he had been on the staff of the Bureau of Ethnology, for the last ten years residing in Washington. Previous official relations were: Assistant on United States geological and geographical surveys of the Territories, under Hayden, 1869-73; professor of natural sciences, Southern Illinois Normal University, 1873-75; State entomologist of Illinois, 1874-76, and member of United States Entomological Commission, 1876-77.

He became an archaeologist of the Bureau of Ethnology in 1882. Something of the volume and scope of his work is to be gathered from this list of his more notable publications:

"Synopsis of the Acrididae of North America," "Noxious and Beneficial Insects of Illinois," five volumes of reports, Tenn., July 27, 1885. After a study of the manuscript Troano, notes on certain Maya and Mexican manuscripts, "Burial Mounds of the Northern Sections of the United States," "Add to the Study of Maya Codices," "The Cherokee and Shawnee in Pre-Columbian Times," "Mound Explorations of the Bureau of American Ethnology," "Prehistoric Works East of the Rocky Mountains," "Introduction to American Ethnology," "Numerical Systems of the Mexican and Central American Tribes," "The Mayan Calendar Systems," "Indians of North America in Historic Times," and "Prehistoric North America."

Native of Tennessee.

Prof. Thomas was born in Kingsport, Tenn., July 27, 1825. After a study of law, he practiced until 1865, and was county clerk of Jackson County, Ill., his early life being spent in that part of the country. From 1865 to 1869 he occupied the pulpit as a minister of the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

From Southern Illinois he moved to Youngville, Pa., and from there to Frederick, Md., where he lived for the ten years prior to his residence in Washington. His first wife was Dorothy Logan, sister of Gen. John A. Logan. Some years after her death he married Miss Viola I. Davis, of Youngville, in 1865. To them were born six children. A son died in infancy, Mrs. Jennie Haller died some years ago, and Miss Jessie Thomas was drowned while skating on the Tidal Basin of the Potomac.

The surviving members of his family are his wife and three daughters, Mrs. C. R. Sturdevant, of Worcester, Mass.; Mrs. C. S. Grindle, and Miss Nellie Thomas, both of Washington. They were with him at the time of his death. Rev. Dr. Joseph Dawson, of Calvary M. E. Church, will officiate at the funeral to-day at 4:30 p. m. at the family home. There will be no pallbearers. The interment will be at Frederick, Md., tomorrow morning.

MEXICO AGAIN NORMAL.

Ambassador Believes the Elections Passed Off Without Disorder.

The Mexican Embassy has received no information of the elections which were held in Mexico yesterday.

"I believe," said Mexican Ambassador de la Barra, "that conditions in my country are normal, and that the elections passed off without disorder. During the present campaign there was much political activity, which shows the vitality of the country and the interest in political affairs."

There are so many interests in Mexico in favor of peace, and there is so much patriotism among the Mexican people, that there is no likelihood of disturbances of the peace."
